Psychometric Creditworthiness Scoring for Business Loans

Abstract

An automated system evaluates the creditworthiness of organization using a predictive model that utilizes the responses of organization managers to psychometric interview questions. The system also administers automated interview via paper, computer, telephone, or Internet protocol. The system also monitors its own performance and regularly retrains its predictive model.